First-Year Employee Experience (FYEE)
Manager and Onboarding Buddy Guide

Onboarding your new employees:
This is a customizable Manager Guide for you to create a first-year experience for new employees that will set them up for success. There is an accompanying Employee Guide that you can tailor to the exact needs of your unit/department and your new employee. For additional support in customizing this guide, or your Employee Guide, reach out to orgdev@tamu.edu.

Four C’s of Successful Onboarding:
- Compliance – legal and policy-related rules and regulations associated with new role
- Clarification – new hire understands their new role and expectations
- Culture – integrate new hire and teach them formal and informal culture norms
- Connection – build working relationships between team members and stakeholders

In this guide:
- Guiding thoughts
- Introducing your new hire
- Welcoming your new hire
- Milestones

Guiding Thoughts
1. Consider what level your new employee is starting at: Expectations for Directors will vary from those of administrative support. Be sure you tailor each Employee Guide to appropriately match those expectations.
2. Give your new hires the space to observe, learn, and think: Don’t overwhelm them with the minutia of decision-making or project involvement too early. In the first 30 days, their focus should be on getting comfortable and seeing how things work.
3. Relationships matter: By day 60, your new hire should be in execution mode, so use their first two months introducing them to stakeholders and creating the foundation for good relationships with leadership and their peers.
4. Welcome questions: Your new hires can’t get the help they need if they aren’t comfortable asking questions. Create an environment that supports open conversation.
5. Seek first to understand: Allow your new hire to challenge why things are the way they are. This gives them the opportunity to learn the whys behind the operations of the team so they will have a better understanding of processes.
6. Buddy up: Consider appointing a person in your office to be the buddy for your new hire. Buddy duties could include: regular check-in with the new hire; point of contact for direction on who they may need to reach out to for questions (IT, HRG, etc.); any actions showing support for the new hire that doesn’t need to come directly from the manager.
7. Human Resources Generalist (HRG) connection: Invite your HRG to some of the first week activities with your new hire. This is an opportunity for your new hire to meet their HRG in-person and for the HRG to start building a relationship with them.

8. Managers’ Minutes: Managers are encouraged to attend Managers’ Minutes and monthly Deep Dive sessions to stay informed on HR-related topics and get guidance on employee and team management strategies, including onboarding.

Welcoming Your New Hire

Week Before Their First Day:

- Take the TrainTraq course: “Working in Workday for Managers” #2114108
- Send a welcome email which give your new hire a rundown of things they need to know for their first day in the department, including parking instructions/map, where/what time to report to work, building map, and specific office location instructions.
- Customize the “FYEE Employee Guide” for your unit/department and your new hire’s needs.
- Designate an Onboarding Buddy who will help support the new hire.
- Update internal org chart and division/department website with new employee profile.
- Request appropriate access (Canopy/FAMIS, Maestro, Concur, Workday, Aggiebuy, Compass, eCampus, building access, etc., as needed)
- Prepare the physical space your new hire will be working in – order equipment and supplies as needed (computer, phone, headphones, webcam, etc.). Create a “welcome gift” for their desk when they arrive. Suggestions for welcome gift: departmental swag, a note or card signed by colleagues, a journal or notebook, Aggie gear, snacks.
- Request network drive access (IT).
- Add new employee to appropriate email distribution lists (if email is already activated).
- Request Travel Card and/or Pro Card, as needed.
- Create a list of required TrainTraq courses the new hire will need to complete.
- Complete LinkedIn Learning courses (if you haven’t already):
  - “Onboarding New Hires as a Manager” (32 min.)
  - “Coaching New Hires” (28 min.)

First Day:

- Meet and greet new hire.
- Introduce your new hire to their Onboarding Buddy.
- Send an organizational/departmental email welcoming and introducing your new hire.
- Take your new hire on a tour of the office and building.
- Introduce them to the team and their Human Resources Generalist (HRG).
- Review security/emergency protocols.
☐ Take your new hire and Onboarding Buddy (invite HRG, if they are available) to lunch or arrange a team lunch where everyone can get to know each other.
☐ Review the “FYEE Employee Guide” with your new employee and set expectations for milestone check-ins.
☐ Send TrainTraq email with the list of required trainings that you created.

First Week:
☐ Introduce new hire to other stakeholders they will be interacting with in their role.
☐ Review position description with new hire and clarify any questions they may have.
☐ Confirm all necessary access has been granted.
☐ Confirm all equipment is working correctly.

Milestones (Managers can customize “How to get there”. The “Outcomes” will be used for survey questions, so they must remain the same.)
